Dear friend,

Before anything, accept me sincerest congratulations for your rebirth, you are one of us.

I ask you: would there be a human being in this world capable of explaining the “infinite work”?

When dealing with the infinite, any treatise, explanation or supposition is no more than a small abstract, and therefore, it will always be a general summary, that is, a synthesis.

Even though a great part of mankind’s history has been lost, or was not even codified, the “Genesis” came to our hands, even though it has been immensely modified by the church and by man, perhaps due to a deficiency in communication, since there were no schools to teach the standard rules of the mother language. And, as we can notice nowadays with all the improvements brought upon the means of communication in the same pattern, the language varies from region to region, even within the same country and the same people, as it happens in Brazil, where there are distinct differences between “gaúchos” (RS), people from the northeast, “mineiros” (MG) etc.

However, what matters is the “sum of the message” that has come to us, that is:

- * “Man was made from clay” (Absorbed Earth products + water)
- * “You are dust, and shall return to it.”
- * The creation of the “tree of good and evil” (the science of good and evil)
- * The order of origin of human beings and the other things;

Man was created first, then, from one of his “ribs” the woman was created. This process which was adopted by the creator suggests a type of asexual breeding by regeneration, the same as amoeba and other microorganisms, which, if cut into pieces, will originate identical beings, that is, with the very same characteristics. (Law of replication).

* “The breath of life” which allowed inert matter to acquire individuality; (The first action upon matter)

Probably, all species which exist upon Earth have been formed via the “Law of Rehearse, Error and Dissociation”, way before they received the “breath of life”, or better yet, way before life “thought of enabling them.

The terms ‘intelligence molecule’ and ‘memory molecule’ must be revised, that is because intelligence is considered as the ability an individual possesses to work with his consciousness (brain) and his memory, where are registered the facts learned during his or hers existence in molecular codes. (Intelligence Unit - Unintel)

As for the question of the origin of man, it shall be discussed later.

As for the egg and the chicken, it is admitted that in order to generate a fertile egg, that is, one with the capacity to germinate, the existence of a male and a female is necessary. Therefore, we can conclude that the oviparous beings have come to adopt the reproduction process at a later stage, due to the demands of the environment.

(*) Even though the letter is dated to 1973, the fact has occurred in 1978.
